The Scottdale boys were at a slight disadvantage on account of the slippery floor, while the boys from Mt. Pleasant seemed perfectly at home on it. Lewis was easily the star for the Mt. Pleasant boys, throwing a field goal while Paul featured for Mt. Pleasant. The score made a miscellany making the score 13 to 11 in Mt. Pleasant's favor, but it was easily rectified. The lineup was as follows:

Scottdale	Mt. Pleasant
Wiggins	1
Leis	1
Scott	1
Shamp	1

Field goals: Lewis 4, Paul 1, Wiggins 1, Scott 1, Griff 1, Shamp 1. Total 13 to 13.

SHOULD LIVE 100 YEARS.

Sir James Crichton Brown's Opinion

St. James Crichton Brown of London at the Congress of the Royal Society of Medicine in London last night gave a lecture on old age. He said that if every person should live 100 years the population of the world would be doubled.

There is no excuse for old age. It is a very common thing to see a man of 70 years of age who is as strong and as active as a man of 30 years of age. The secret of this is that he has been living a healthy life and has not been overworked.

When one finds that he is getting old, he should not be discouraged. He should keep his mind active and his body healthy. He should not be idle and should not be overworked.

SHIP SUBSIDY DEAD.

Democratic Senators by Deliberate Filibuster Stop
Its Passage.

SUNDAY SESSION HELD IN VAIN

House Accomplishes Considerable
Work—Amendment to La Follette
Bill Limiting Hours of Railroad
Telegraphers Insisted Upon.

Washington, March 4.—By far the larger part of the Sunday session of the senate was devoted to a filibuster by the Democratic senators against the ship subsidy bill as it passed the house, and when the senate adjourned a few minutes before midnight, the bill was still pending, but it was facing the absolute certainty of failure with the close of the congress at noon today. Speeches intended for no other purpose than to kill time were made by Senators Carmack, Dubois, Overman, Newlands and others who frankly confessed their intention of defeating consideration of the (to them) objectionable measure. When the recess was taken at 11:40 the friends of the bill had given up all hope of securing any ship subsidy legislation during the present session.

Never before has the senate appeared to resist so much an attempt to kill legislation by filibustering methods. Mr. Carmack, as the director of the minority movement against the bill, kept the members convulsed with his sallies, and at no time did he try to hide the fact that his effort was a filibuster pure and simple. He scorned subterfuge, and at the outset of his remarks came into the open by addressing himself principally to the term "filibusters," which Mr. Gallinger had applied to Democratic senators who have undertaken to defeat the measure.

First Mr. Carmack devoted himself to an invective of Webster's dictionary as an authority on orthography and definition, and said that if the senate had any doubt that this work was an authority he would bring it in and ask that passages from it be read at the desk.

After reading Webster's definition of "filibuster," with its varying uses and synonyms, Mr. Carmack said that the remark of Mr. Gallinger had branded him as "a marauder, a pillager, a buccaneer, a sea robber, a freebooter, and a pirate upon the seas." In fact, he said, "I have been accused of almost everything except appendicitis. So branded, I am to be refuted from this body and sent to my home, for I cannot defend myself by attacking the character or the credibility of the senator from New Hampshire. I cannot discredit him truthfully, and therefore I cannot discredit him at all."

When he had spoken for about 45 minutes with the obvious purpose of killing time, Mr. Carmack paused, looked at his watch, and remarked: "Well, I see I must be hurrying along." At this the senators on the floor shouted their assent.

To give Mr. Carmack a rest, Mr. Dubois asked to be permitted to read from a very interesting document on the subject of ship subsidy, and Mr. Spooner protested that as Mr. Carmack was in so great a hurry to conclude it would not be fair to interrupt him. The Tennessee senator, however, said he was sure that any contribution from Mr. Dubois would be valuable, and he should be glad to permit it to be read and incorporated in the body of his remarks. Mr. Dubois then read at length, and when he had concluded a very technical paragraph to which few senators paid any attention. Mr. Carmack asked that the last paragraph be repeated, as he regarded it of great importance. Laughter followed, and as Mr. Dubois sat down Mr. Gallinger interrupted to reply, he said, to what he thought had been an unwarranted attack upon him.

At this juncture a colloquy occurred between Mr. Gallinger and Mr. Carmack over the definition of the word filibuster as given by different dictionaries, and the latter charged Mr. Gallinger had simply been trying to "filibuster according to his own definition of the word."

Charging that the pending measure was for the purpose of "looting the treasury," Mr. Carmack referred to the bill as voting a "subvention," and Mr. McLaurin asked the difference between "subsidy" and "subvention."

Mr. Carmack answered: "Subsidy by any other name smells as bad."

Rebuke Resented.
Just as Senator Tillman had produced a burst of laughter during the discussion of the amount of steel in a ship by asking how much "steel" there was in ship subsidy, Senator Frye of Maine took occasion to rebuke the whole proceeding as unbecomely and ungracious. For the senate to hold a session on the Sabbath day, he remarked, for the sole purpose of frivolous debate for the amusement of the galleries was about the most unbecomely proceeding he had ever witnessed. While he spoke, Mr. Frye turned so as to face Senator Carmack, who was seated. He at once arose and replied.

"If the senator refers to me, I will say that I am not responsible to him for my conduct, and I shall conduct myself according to my own notions of propriety. If the senator from Maine does not like my manner, he has my permission to leave the chamber and go where he can attend church if he would prefer."

"I would much rather be in church," declared Mr. Frye.

"If the senator wishes to take a recess until tomorrow morning I shall not interfere with it," suggested Mr. Carmack.

"The senator knows I cannot," was the reply.

Carmack Refuses to Yield.
"Well," continued Mr. Carmack, "the senator is evidently much more concerned about the defeat of this bill than anything else." Mr. Carmack then declined to yield further to Mr. Frye, although the latter attempted to interrupt.

The ship subsidy bill as it passed the house was laid before the senate when Senator Gallinger moved to concur in the house amendments. He was met with a motion by Senator Burdett to substitute the Burdett resolution for an inquiry into the practice of the railroad companies under the railroad rate law.

After the defeat of several motions to postpone, a general agreement was reported that the subsidy bill should be taken up for consideration at 5 o'clock, the house bill to be printed in the meantime.

When Senator Gallinger attempted to secure a vote on his motion to concur in the house amendment, Senator Dubois promptly moved to take a recess, but that motion also was voted down.

The chairman of the Democratic senatorial caucus, Mr. Bachman, gave notice to the Republican leaders that the Democrats would not permit the ship subsidy bill to pass the senate before adjournment. Speaking of the matter afterward, he said that if necessary the Democratic senators would talk until the gavel should fall at 12 o'clock Monday.

Sunday Work in the House.

More than an hour was spent by the House in obtaining a quorum for its Sunday sessions, but when the necessary number was secured business proceeded as usual. A greater part of the day's session was given to the consideration of conference reports. Of these a partial report on the sundry civil bill, and a partial report on the La Follette railroad bill were accepted and the bills sent back to conference for further consultation with the representatives of the senate. The final report on the pension appropriation bill, containing a provision for the maintenance of 18 pension agencies, was agreed to. The bill authorizing the establishment of an agricultural bank in the Philippine islands was passed.

After heated debate the house decided almost unanimously to stand for a provision in the bill regulating the hours of railway employees which will prevent railway telegraphers from working more than one consecutive hour. This provision was in the bill as originally passed by the house, but the senate eliminated it and the senate conferees refused to accept it when the bill went to conference.

SPENT ONE BILLION

Congress Just Ended Broke Record for Liberality.

Washington, March 4.—More money has been appropriated during the short session of the Fifty-ninth congress which passes into history at noon today than during any previous session. The amount, as now as can be estimated, approximates a billion dollars.

Two big battleships were authorized for the navy, and the artillery corps of the army was reorganized and enlarged. A general service pension was granted to veterans of the Mexican and Civil Wars, and like provisions were made for army nurses. For river and harbor improvements the appropriation aggregated $33,000,000.

Increased salaries were given to cabinet ministers, the vice president and senators, the speaker of the house of representatives and its members, to ambassadors, ministers and consuls, to postoffice clerks and letter carriers.

The public made more inquiries for information from the document rooms of congress regarding the ship subsidy bill, the currency measure and the bill regulating the hours of service of railway employees than any other pending legislation. Ship subsidy died hard in the last hours. The other two measures became laws as the session closed.

The immigration bill, one of the measures brought over from the long session, was completed under the spur of the President that he might meet the California-Japanese situation by giving the administration control of coasts immigration through passports. The bill further restricts the admission of aliens to the country.

Twenty-five Overcome By Coal Gas.
Smithfield, R. I., March 3.—Twenty men and five women were overcome by coal gas in a boarding house connected with the Borden cotton mills in the village of Georgiaville, and while nearly all were eventually resuscitated, it is feared that in two cases fatal results may follow.

Washington, March 4.—John C. Spooner of Wisconsin has resigned his seat in the United States senate, his resignation to take effect May 1, 1907. Mr. Spooner in his letter to Governor Davidson, gives a reason for resigning his desire to resume the practice of law.

Allentown, Pa., March 4.—William H. Snowden, who represented Tenth Pennsylvania district in the Forty-Ninth and Fiftieth congresses, died last evening at his home here from dropsy and heart disease, his illness dating from last November. He was 63 years of age and a native of England.

THE SHERIFF HAD LEVIED ON IT.

Hotel Proprietor at Somerset Charged With Selling to a Minor Was Cleared by the Jury and Costs Were Placed on Prosecutor.

Special to The Courier.

SOMERSET, Mar. 2.—Yesterday afternoon the case of the Commonwealth versus Dr. Jean L. Martin, charged with larceny by M. S. Davis of the Markleton Hotel Company, was decided in favor of the defendant. Dr. Martin has been physician for the Markleton Sanatorium for several years. It seems that the company controlling that institution contracted with the sheriff to sell there and made a levy on an execution issued by the court. This levy included all personal property. After the levy had been made the defendant took a typewriter from the office of the Sanatorium and carried it to room No. 90. He locked the door and refused to give the machine to the sheriff.

In court it developed that the typewriter was the property of the defendant and that he was justified in removing it from one room to another. The court said that the levy made by the sheriff could not reach the private property of Dr. Martin.

The case against William Parson, proprietor of the Somerset Hotel, by I. C. Trease, for furnishing liquors to minors, was also tried yesterday. Trease alleges that on the night of February 19, 1907, he and other minors got liquor from the defendant, and that he was justified in removing it from one room to another. The court said that the levy made by the sheriff could not reach the private property of Dr. Martin.

HANDCUFF KING.

Great Raymond Did Some Startling
Stunts at Greensburg—At Colonial This Week.

The Great Raymond opens a three nights' engagement at the Colonial this evening. Raymond is the handcuff king and he has been doing some startling things according to all accounts, stunts that without the aid of the press agent got first page display heads in the newspapers. Here is what the Greensburg star says of his last appearance at the St. Clair theatre last week:

"For seemingly supernatural, dumb, founding, perplexing puzzles Raymond's performance at the St. Clair theatre last night takes first place. Nothing to equal it for weird sensationalism has ever been sprung on a Greensburg audience. After a series of slight of hand tricks that he skill and elegance equalled the best of feats of Kotter or Herman in their primeval days, Raymond attempted the most daring feat of all in response to a written challenge from Claxson & Hunter, the well known groceryman.

"Raymond permitted himself to be nailed inside of a solid wooden box. Squire Truxal purchased the lumber and nails and helped build the box. When interviewed, Squire Truxal said 'I am completely dumfounded. How that man ever escaped from that box is certainly a mystery. I make no doubt my own eyesight.'

"The box was built on the stage in full view of the audience. The committee on the stage were ex-Sheriff Claxson, Squire Truxal, Clyde Burns and Cy Mathias, and they nailed the box together. Raymond before entering the box removed his coat and shoes and was carefully searched. Raymond then jumped into the box, which was surrounded by the committee and the lid was nailed down. The committee then solemnly roped the box. In less than six minutes Raymond had disappeared from the box, and everybody is still guessing how.

"Raymond carries with him one of the best handcuff shows on the road and everybody is pleased with his work."

MEMBERSHIP CONTEST

Strides of Progress in Past Six Months Have Been Wonderful.

DIRECTORS' MEETING TOMORROW

Evening at 8.30 for the Purpose of Completing Arrangements for a Big Membership Getting Race That Will Stir Much Interest.

The Young Men's Christian Association of Conneltsville has made unparalleled strides of progress during the last six months. The most sanguine of its friends were astonished at the great success of the late building financial canvass when more than $50,000 was pledged by the friends of the Association in and out of Conneltsville. It was a noble effort and crowned with abundant success. All the splendid blessings that such an organization brings to a community were emphasized from time to time and we are reaping these apparent benefits in a stronger, more self-reliant and trained manhood among our young men. The work in all its departments is in a flourishing condition. In January over 1,300 lessons in body building were given in the gymnasium. More than 7,000 persons were in the building during the month. Nearly 1,200 attended religious and Bible meetings, and the gymnasium and reading rooms were well patronized. The educational department is growing. Classes in milking, mechanical drawing with 25 young men attending, a male chorus and the employed boys' school, where arithmetic, penmanship, spelling and grammar are taught and all in operation. W. N. Leach and Secretary Elze returned from the State convention at Allentown and gave reports of it at the men's meeting yesterday. They report that Conneltsville, by its recent growth and the erection of its magnificent building, and the large employed force in the Association, has taken its position among the strong associations of the State.

Notwithstanding all this progress the Association is not bringing its blessings to more than half the men and boys for whom it has room. The people were asked to give their money and the young men of this community might get these benefits. The membership has increased to about 100. But it should be 700 or 800. The time is now here when its membership should be doubled. The Directors, Secretaries and Physical Director are determined that its great benefit shall be shared by a number of hundreds of new men and boys. To this end a most vigorous membership campaign will begin next Wednesday and last till March 28, when it will close with a great physical exhibition in the theatre. In order to add interest and enthusiasm to the campaign a fine loving cup was purchased in Philadelphia which is on display as follows:

Conneltsville, Pa.
Y. M. C. A.
Membership Contest,
March 1907.

Awarded to
The membership of the Association will be divided into six teams, four of which will contest for this cup, and other prize being offered for the two teams in the Junior department.

A special meeting of the Director and the Membership Committee will be held tonight at 8.30, after the union meeting, to finish the preparations. A meeting for all the members will be held Tuesday night after the church service, when the loving cup will be exhibited and sides chosen for the cup. Every member of the Association is expected to be present tomorrow night to help start the contest.

Union Meetings.
Under the auspices of the local Ministers' Association, union services will begin at the M. E. Church tonight. William Peterson of Pittsburg, a chorale leader of wide repute, will lead the singing. The local pastors will preach. The meetings begin at 7.30 each evening. You are invited.

of Shoes always pleases the little fellows. They will surely be very proud of them if bought from us, for the styles for little men are attractive and neat, comfortable to the foot, and a good plant for mothers—very durable in wearing. Moreover, they keep their shape in their wear, and do not warp and twist as some boys' shoes do. Have the boys shed here and you will not regret it, or paying this price either.

FLYER IS DYNAMITED.

Passengers on Fast Pennsylvania Train Have Terrifying Experience.

BLASTS FIRED AT WRONG TIME

By Some Blunder, Railroad Workmen Near Huntingdon Put off Three Heavy Shots Just as Train Is Passing Dangerous Spot.

Pittsburg, March 4. — Passing through three dynamite explosions at 50 miles an hour and incidentally adding a unique chapter to disaster history, the Pennsylvania Railroad New York-Pittsburg flyer arrived at Union station at 7 o'clock last night with an injured man and woman.

The flyer, which is known as No. 43, is one of the fastest in the Pennsylvania service, and runs westward as far as Pittsburg at the same speed as does the 16-hour train which was wrecked recently at Mineral Point. For a great proportion of the distance the train makes 50 miles an hour, and its debut in casualty circles was attended by more than a touch of the spectacular.

More P. R. R. Luck. That more of the passengers were not injured is regarded as almost miraculous. Two of the coaches and the observation car of the handsome train were badly damaged. Most of the vestibule and the platform steps of the first coach were torn away. The explosions came at Mexico, just east of Huntingdon, on the middle division, at 3:15 p. m. If a band of daring highwaymen had planned to hold up the train they could not have arranged more perfectly detonations.

It is explained that at Mexico the grade of some of the tracks is being changed and this, with extensive alterations, requires the use of dynamite. A gang of men was at work all day, had sunk three holes, and in each of the holes were sticks of dynamite. A "harass" of wires ran from a main wire into the holes. At the other end of the wire, on the far side of the hill, stood the man who was to press the button. Behind him were the workmen who had congregated there for safety.

Somewhat Had Blundered. Whether the workmen had timed the explosion with great nicety to catch the express on the wing, or whether some one became excited and set off the spark at exactly the wrong moment, is not known. But it is known that two of the holes exploded just as the engine and first coach were passing.

The passengers at first thought they had been caught in the vortex of a tornado. The heavy train rocked on its trucks, and with the breaking of windows and the tearing away of a vestibule and platform steps, the occupants of the first coach had a quick vision of all that is horrible in a railroad disaster. These passengers did not have a monopoly on the thrill long, as the third hole, farther down toward the rear of the train, sent out a standing seizer of sand and small stones.

Nearly every window on one side of the observation car was smashed. Those in this car had not time to get their hands out of the windows to find out what was happening ahead when the second blast came. It was all a matter of seconds.

Train Kept Rushing On. The second explosion caught the train as it was rocking, but there was little or no check to the rushing speed of the flyer. It was not until a mile or two had been passed that a stop was made.

The passengers in the observation car say the effect of the explosion was terrible, since there was no diminishing of speed. The woman reported as badly injured was struck by flying glass and other feminine travelers fainted.

S. L. Cowie, the conductor, when he passed through the coaches to see that no one was killed, was besieged with inquiries from the frightened passengers. The explosions had happened so suddenly, the roar and flying dust jumping up from nowhere in particular, that there were few in the coaches who were able to make more than a guess as to what had been the cause.
